

Is it time to make a significant change in your strategy? Think about your long-term goals and position in the market.

Take a look at how your firm performed in the last quarter and then review the strategic plan that you have been following for the last few quarters.